= = History = =

A road in the location of PA 284 first shows on maps as early as 1873 . PA 284 was first designated along its current alignment during the 1928 renumbering of state highways in Pennsylvania . The designation was done as a spur to the alignment of PA 84 , which was designated from Piatt Township to the New York state line . The entire alignment of PA 284 was paved by the Pennsylvania Department of Highways in 1932 , including the bridge over Flooks Run and Blacks Creek . However , the alignment has remained relatively unchanged since . In 1961 , with the designation of Interstate 84 , the alignment of PA 84 was re @- @ designated as PA 287 to avoid duplication . In 1974 , PA 284 was adjusted for the construction of the new U.S. Route 15 alignment . This was adjusted in 1998 with the construction of U.S. Route 15 for preparations to convert the route to Interstate 99 .
