NY 192 began at an intersection with NY 30 in the hamlet of Paul Smiths within the town of Brighton in Franklin County . The highway headed to the northeast , passing Cooler Pond to the south and Church Pond to the north . Just north of Church Pond was Osgood Pond , which was accessible at the first intersection , which was White Pond Road . NY 192 then headed eastward , intersecting with County Route 31 (CR 31 , named Jones Pond Road) in the hamlet of Paul Smiths Easy Street . The highway turned to the southeast , intersecting with another county route and passing Brighton Town Park . At the intersection with CR 60 near the park , NY 192 entered Gabriels .

NY 192 then continued to the southeast , intersecting with CR 55 , its former routing eastward to NY 3 in Bloomingdale . At CR 55 , NY 192 curved southward and passed into the town of Harrietstown . The route ended shortly afterward at a junction with NY 86 in the hamlet of Harrietstown 2 miles (3 @. @ 2 km) east of the Adirondack Regional Airport .

When NY 3 was assigned in 1924 , it followed a significantly different routing through the North Country than it does today . NY 3 entered Franklin County near Hogansburg and served Malone , Paul Smiths , Gabriels , and Harrietstown before leaving the county near Saranac Lake . In the 1930 renumbering of state highways in New York , NY 3 was rerouted east of Watertown to follow its modern alignment through the North Country . The portion of NY 3 's former routing from Harrietstown to a junction southeast of Gabriels was designated as NY 408 while the segment between Paul Smiths and the vicinity of Gabriels became part of NY 192 , an east ? west highway extending from Paul Smiths to the realigned NY 3 in Bloomingdale .

NY 408 and the eastern half of NY 192 were included as part of NY 365 c . 1932 . The new route extended from NY 5 southwest of Oneida to U.S. Route 9 (US 9) in Plattsburgh . NY 365 initially overlapped both NY 192 and NY 408 ; however , NY 408 was removed c . 1938 , leaving only NY 365 on the Harrietstown ? Gabriels roadway . NY 192 , meanwhile , continued to overlap NY 365 from Gabriels to Bloomingdale . In the mid @- @ 1940s , NY 365 was rerouted between Wawbeek and Bloomingdale to overlap NY 3 instead . The portion of NY 365 's former routing from Harrietstown to Gabriels was not initially assigned a new designation .

The Harrietstown ? Gabriels highway became a signed route once again in the early 1950s when it became NY 192A . Both NY 192 and NY 192A remained unchanged through the late 1970s . On January 7 , 1980 , NY 192A was supplanted by a realigned NY 192 . Maintenance of NY 192 's former routing between Gabriels and Bloomingdale was transferred to the counties it ran through ? namely Franklin and Essex ? in stages . The Franklin County portion was given to the county on April 1 , 1980 , while the section in Essex County was transferred to county control on April 1 , 1985 , as part of highway maintenance swaps between the state of New York and Franklin and Essex counties . On March 28 , 1989 , NY 192 was supplanted by a realigned NY 86 .
