Win Butler and Josh Deu originally founded Arcade Fire in Montreal around 2001 , having first met at Phillips Exeter Academy as high school students . Both attended Concordia University where their musical ideas began to develop and the first incarnation of the band was born . The duo began rehearsing their material at McGill University where they met Régine Chassagne , a music student whom they asked to join them . Deu recalls , " Win and I played guitar . Everyone played guitar . We had no music to show her , but she ended up saying yes to joining us , and I don ? t know why . Maybe there was a little spark with Win . " The trio recorded a set of demos and began performing live in the second half of 2001 . At that time , the band consisted of Butler , Chassagne , Deu , multi @-@ instrumentalist Tim Kyle (later of Wild Light) , bassist Alan Lavian (later of Les Angles Morts , Crystal Clyffs , and AIDS Wolf) , guitarist / drummer Dane Mills (later of Crackpot) , and multi @-@ instrumentalist Brendan Reed (later of Les Angles Morts and founding member of Clues) , who lived with Butler and Chassagne in Montreal 's Mile End neighbourhood at the time and was a collaborator with them on song @-@ writing and arrangement (2001 ? 2003) .

The initial Montreal structure of the band began to dissolve in the summer of 2002 , when they travelled to Butler 's family farm on Mount Desert Island , Maine to record their self @-@ titled EP . Tension between Butler and bassist Myles Broscoe led the latter to exit the band following the recording session . Richard Reed Parry , who had been enlisted to help the band record , began to collaborate with them during the sessions and would go on to join the band shortly afterwards . Around the same time , Joshua Deu left the band to continue his studies ; he continued to collaborate on the visual aspects of the band . In the winter of 2003 , the band celebrated the release of its EP with a show at Montreal 's Casa del Popolo . Before a crowd packed beyond capacity , the band 's set ended (in the middle of an encore) with an argument between Butler and Reed , who quit the band on @-@ stage . Mills told gathered friends in the crowd immediately thereafter that he considered the band to have broken up , as such resigning from the band as well . Following the on @-@ stage implosion , Butler 's brother William Butler (subject of the early Arcade Fire song " William Pierce Butler ") and Tim Kingsbury were brought in to replace Reed and Mills so that the band could continue , and they set out to promote the self @-@ titled EP . The eponymous release (often referred to by fans as the Us Kids Know EP) was sold at early shows . After the band achieved fame , the EP was subsequently remastered and given a full release .

The promise shown by the new band in its early live shows allowed them to land a record contract with the independent record label , Merge Records , before the end of its first year together .

When asked about the rumour that the band 's name refers to a fire in an arcade , Win Butler replied : " It 's not a rumour , it 's based on a story that someone told me . It 's not an actual event , but one that I took to be real . I would say that it 's probably something that the kid made up , but at the time I believed him . "

== = 2004 ? 06 : Funeral == =

Funeral was released in September 2004 in Canada and February 2005 in Great Britain . The title of the debut album referred to the deaths of several relatives of band members (prominently the Butlers ' grandfather , composer / arranger Alvino Rey) during its recording . These events created a somber atmosphere that influenced songs such as " Une année sans lumière " (" A Year Without Light ") , " In the Backseat " , and " Haïti " , Chassagne 's elegy to her homeland .

The album was critically and commercially acclaimed . It appeared on many top ten album lists for 2004 and 2005 (due to delayed international releases) , with Pitchfork , Filter , No Ripcord , and The MTV2 2005 Review crowning it the album of the year .
