Twenty @-@ nine players in all represented the Eagles during their lone season of existence . The last active player who played with the Eagles was Bill Cowley , who retired in 1947 after his final season with the Boston Bruins . He was also the only player in franchise history to start his career with the Eagles and be inducted into the Hockey Hall of Fame . Syd Howe was the only captain of the team during its existence and the two players were the only Eagles players to be inducted into the Hall of Fame .

Carl Voss led the team with 18 assists and 31 points Howe led them in goalscoring registering 14 , despite being traded midway through the season . The totals were much lower than the NHL leaders as Charlie Conacher of Toronto led the league with 36 goals and 57 points , while Art Chapman of the Americans led for assists notching 34 . Bill Beveridge was the only goaltender the team used during the season . Out of his 11 wins three were shutouts .

The list of players in the history of the team is presented below .
