New York State Route 402 (NY 402) was a state highway located within the village of Tivoli in Dutchess County , New York , in the United States . It was assigned in the early 1930s and served as a connector between NY 9G and what was once a ferry landing on the Hudson River west of the village . Although the ferry service linking Tivoli and the village of Saugerties was shut down in the 1940s , NY 402 continued to exist until 1980 . On April 1 of that year , ownership and maintenance of the highway was transferred to Dutchess County as part of a highway maintenance swap between the county and the state of New York . The highway became part of an extended County Route 78 (CR 78) , which had begun at the junction of NY 9G and NY 402 prior to the swap .

NY 402 began at what was once a ferry landing on the Hudson River west of the Tivoli village center , but within the village limits , in northwestern Dutchess County . The highway went southward from the ferry landing , paralleling the Hudson River for a short distance before it turned eastward and traversed a pair of hills as it approached the center of the village . In this area , NY 402 connected to Sycamore Point , a plateau overlooking the Hudson River . East of the highway leading to Sycamore Point , NY 402 intersected with Woods Road , a north ? south highway marking the western edge of the village 's central district .

The route proceeded eastward through the village center , an area comprising homes , businesses , and St. Sylvia 's Church . It exited the area upon intersecting Clay Hill Road , at which point NY 402 changed names from Broadway to Mill Street . The route continued for another 0 @. @ 3 miles (0 @. @ 48 km) to an intersection with NY 9G , where NY 402 ended and the roadway continued east as CR 78 .

NY 402 was assigned in the early 1930s as a connector between NY 9G east of the village of Tivoli and a ferry landing on the Hudson River west of the village . At the landing , NY 402 connected to a ferry linking Tivoli to U.S. Route 9W (US 9W) in the village of Saugerties . The ferry service was shut down in the 1940s ; however , NY 402 remained in place until 1980 . On April 1 of that year , ownership and maintenance of NY 402 was transferred from the state of New York to Dutchess County as part of a highway maintenance swap between the two levels of government . Following the swap , the former routing of NY 402 became a westward extension of CR 78 , which began at the junction of NY 9G and NY 402 prior to the swap .

When NY 402 was assigned , it was one of two routes that served solely as a connector between a through highway and a ferry landing . The other route was NY 373 , a highway linking US 9 to a ferry across Lake Champlain at Port Kent . NY 347 , a short route connecting NY 22 to another ferry across Lake Champlain at Ticonderoga , was assigned later in the decade .
