Outside their tree house , Finn and Jake snooze , while BMO (Niki Yang) and N.E.P.T.R. (Andy Milonakis) play out a spoof of Robin Hood and the Sheriff of Nottingham . The two break open Finn and Jake 's treasure room , pouring their massive stash of gold out into the yard , as well as the Ancient Psychic Tandem War Elephant (Steve Agee) . BMO talks Finn into spending the money at an expensive resort at Wildberry Kingdom . When they arrive in the town square , Jake unloads their treasure into the city 's fountain . A guard scolds them for this , but they bribe him with a few shillings and a crown , freeing them from the law . Chaos follows shortly after Jake uses wealth to control the residents . When they disrespect her authority , Wildberry Princess (Maria Bamford) orders Finn and Jake to be arrested and for their money to be seized and melted down . Her punishment is for them to be covered in the molten gold , but BMO and N.E.P.T.R. arrive just in time and save the two .

For io9 Animation , Jason Krell called it " pretty solid " , albeit lacking in relation to the season 's story arc . In his " additional musings " section , he hoped that the war elephant will make a " more meaningful " return , while questioning why nobody in the episode commented on the return of Finn 's arm from " Breezy " . Oliver Sava of The A.V. Club gave it a B + , referring it as a throwback to early episodes of the show where specific lessons were taught without dealing with the serial elements of surrounding episodes . He wrote that , while " not quite as substantial as recent installments , it 's still very entertaining " . Ryley Trahan of the online Entertainment Weekly praised the use of Ward 's " best , most subversive humor " , calling it a " great one @-@ shot look " into the main duo 's mischief ; in the print publication , Ray Rahman summarized , " it 's never too early to start saving , kids " .
