

$y = e^x$  is called the exponential function, and its inverse is the natural logarithm, or logarithm to base  $e$ . The natural logarithm of a positive number  $k$  can also be defined directly as the area under the curve  $y =$