M @-@ 189 is a north ? south state trunkline highway in the Upper Peninsula of the US state of Michigan . It serves as the continuation of Highway 139 (WIS 139) from Wisconsin into Michigan , connecting to US Highway 2 (US 2) in Iron River . M @-@ 189 has been largely unchanged since being designated in the 1930s , although a new bridge over the Brule River at the state line was built in 1988 .

= = Route description = =

M @-@ 189 starts at the Wisconsin state line in the middle of a bridge crossing the Brule River that connects to WIS 139 . The highway runs to the northeast away from the river through forests . The trunkline turns north and curving to the east to run past Laurel Lake . The highway forks at the junction with Caspian Cutoff Road (County Road 651) ; M @-@ 189 takes the northwesterly fork and runs around the west side of Caspian . The roadway passes the Iron River County Club as the highway begins to parallel the Iron River . M @-@ 189 follows Selden Road north through the southside of the city of Iron River , continuing as 4th Street into downtown . The trunkline ends at a junction with US 2 (Adams Street) in the middle of town .

No part of M @-@ 189 is listed on the National Highway System . In 2009 , the Michigan Department of Transportation conducted a survey to determine the traffic volume along the highway , reported using a metric called average annual daily traffic (AADT) . The department determined that 892 vehicles a day used the highway near the state line while 5 @, @ 308 vehicles used the central section through Caspian . The northernmost segment near US 2 had an AADT of 4 @, @ 079 vehicles .
